You're looking at the damage caused by a ball-bearing as it struck the iPhone in a soldier's pocket after a bomb was detonated by a suicide bomber in Afghanistan, reports KSL.

Staff Sgt. Shaun Frank survived a blast from just feet away. Part of the reason is because his iPhone stopped some of the shrapnel from piercing his body.

"They did tell him when he got back to base that that iPhone probably saved his life," said Frank's sister, Alisha Lantz.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in a relationship for two years. We gave each other our phone passwords as soon as we made it official to avoid keeping things from each other.

One night I had a sudden urge to go through his phone. I had never done it before, and when I looked at his Facebook messages, I saw he had been exchanging inappropriate pictures with someone. I was shocked and angry, and it almost ended our relationship.

He deleted and blocked this person, and I forgave him. We don't talk about it anymore. I haven't noticed any other red flags, but now, when he's asleep or goes somewhere and leaves his phone at home, just looking at it upsets me. I'll put a pillow or a blanket over it so I can "forget" it's there. I don't know if I should take another peek to make sure he's staying on the straight and narrow, or if ignorance is bliss. What do you think? --
UNSURE GUY IN TEXAS

DEAR UNSURE GUY: Ignorance ISN'T bliss. Being able to trust the man you're with is, and if it turns out you can't, it's better that you know sooner rather than later. It appears you still have some unresolved trust issues with him that need to be discussed.

Between you and me, if he was trying to conceal something, he probably wouldn't be leaving his phone exposed and vulnerable to checking.

Why Is Gmail One of the Best “emails”?

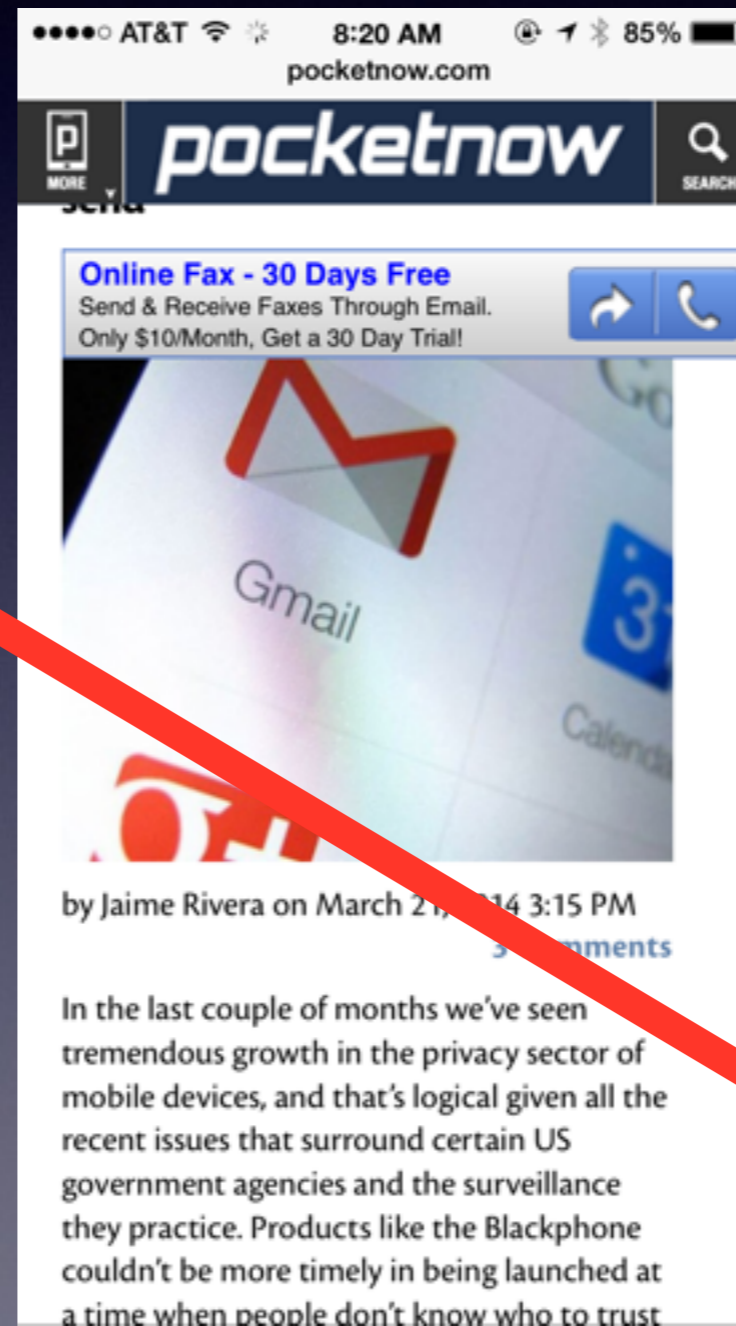

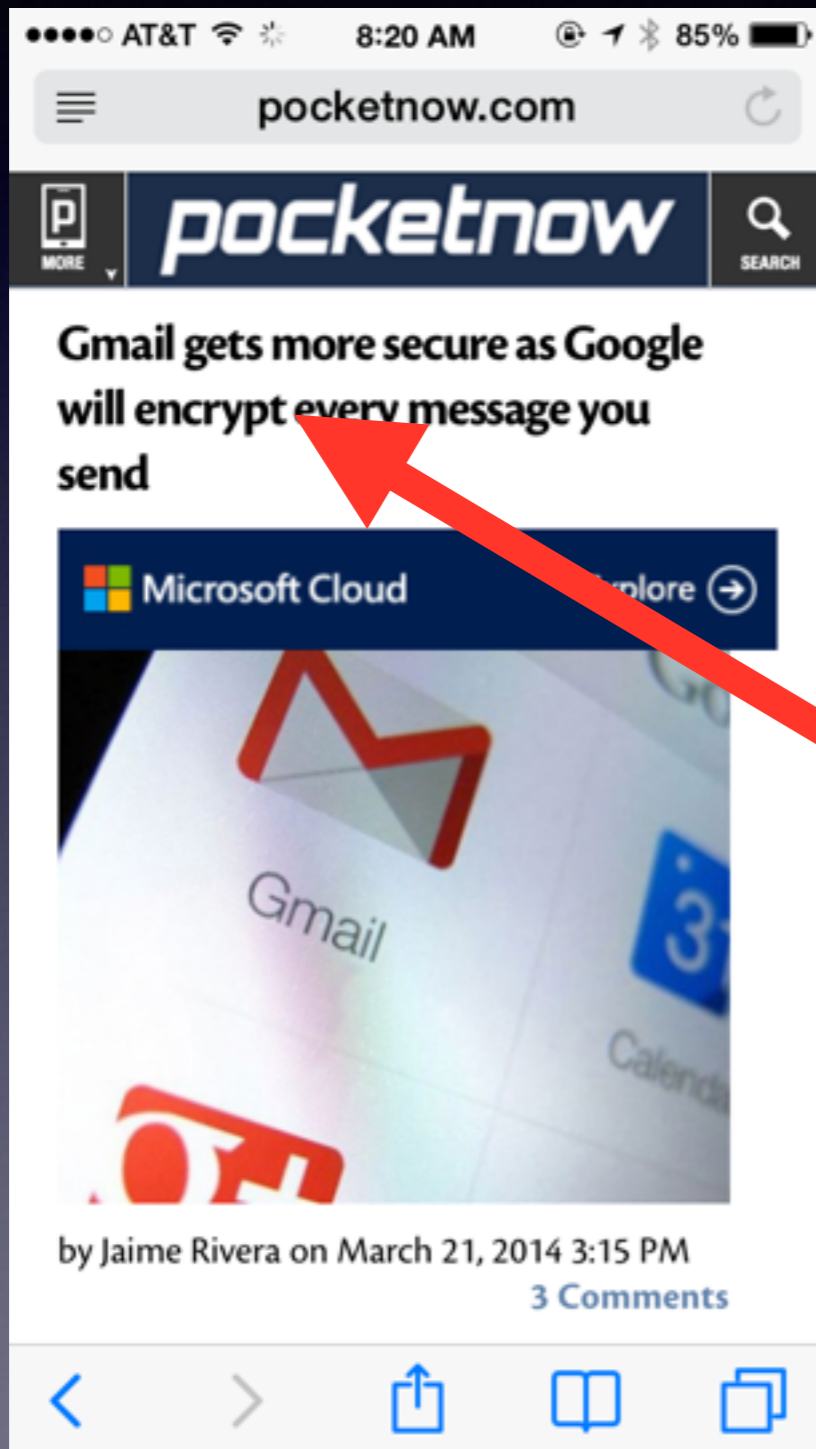

<http://m.pocketnow.com/2014/03/21/gmail-gets-more-secure>

Gmail

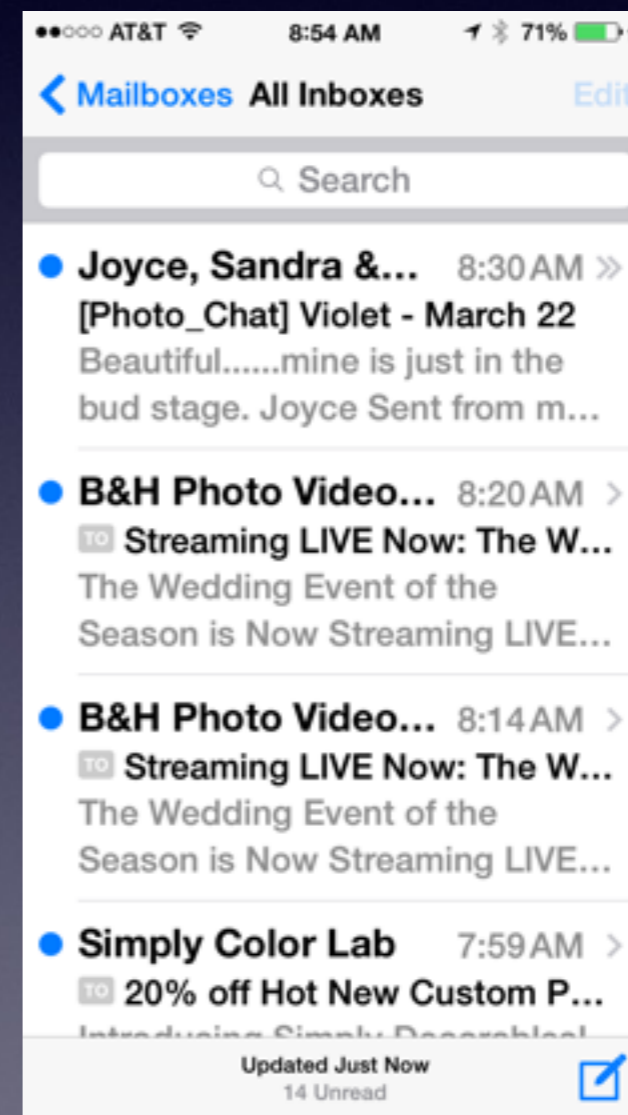

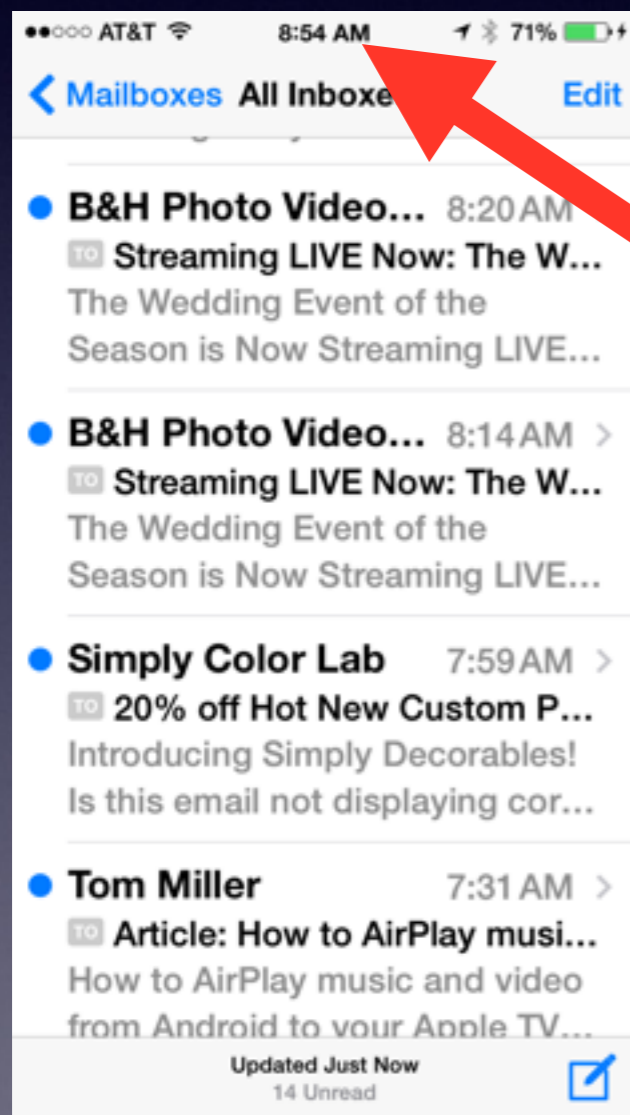

Google’s native email software is one of the best — and most popular — Web-based email clients out there. The feature-rich email account is completely free and comes bundled with 10 GB of cloud storage for your messages, attachments, and any other files you might want to access online. The newly redesigned interface and organizational options are pretty standard, but that’s not to say they’re not attractive, and the filters do an excellent job sifting through the routine onslaught of spam you’re likely receive on a daily basis. Gmail users can also manage multiple inboxes simultaneously

There are two big problems with the iPhone:

1.) If you're a moderate to heavy user, your battery is likely dead by the end of the day.

2.) If you bought one of the cheaper iPhones with just 16 GB of storage, you don't have much room in your device for all the photos, videos, and music you

Inside the iPad rig Jimmy Fallon used to duet with Billy Joel on 'The Tonight Show'

By Neil Hughes

Apple's iPad was the centerpiece of a live performance this week featuring the legendary Billy Joel and "Tonight Show" host Jimmy Fallon, and AppleInsider has learned exactly what hardware and software producers utilized to make the memorable duet happen.

The performance, which relied the iPad application Loopy HD, proved so popular that even Apple Chief Executive Tim Cook took notice on Friday, tweeting out the clip to his 425,000 followers and calling it "magical." Fallon collaborated with Joel in an a capella rendition of the 1961 hit "The Lion Sleeps Tonight" by The Tokens.

But an iPad and Loopy HD alone were not enough to enable the performance, which saw Joel and Fallon loop their own harmonizing voices for backing vocals. While at his "Tonight Show" desk, Fallon controlled the Loopy HD application on an iPad mini that was connected to an offscreen device via a black Lightning cable, and both he and Joel utilized wireless microphones to input their vocals.

"Tonight" staff member John MacDonald revealed on Friday that Fallon's iPad mini was connected to an Access Quartet. The setup put together by Grammy winning producer Lawrence Manchester, who is a music mixer for Fallon's program, made it possible for microphones to be connected to the iPad and Loopy HD.

Cellphones Pose Hazard to Server Filling Water Glasses

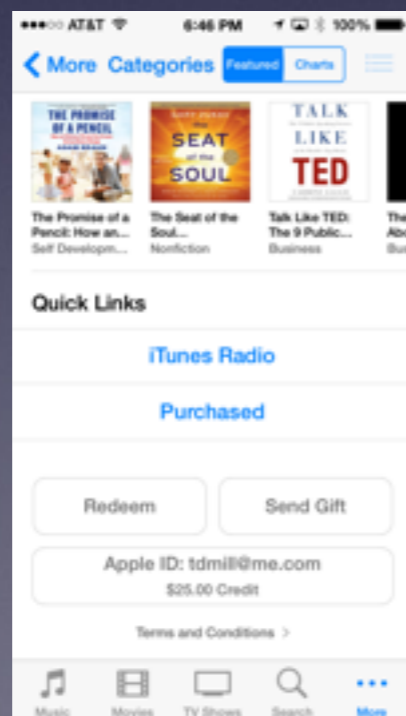

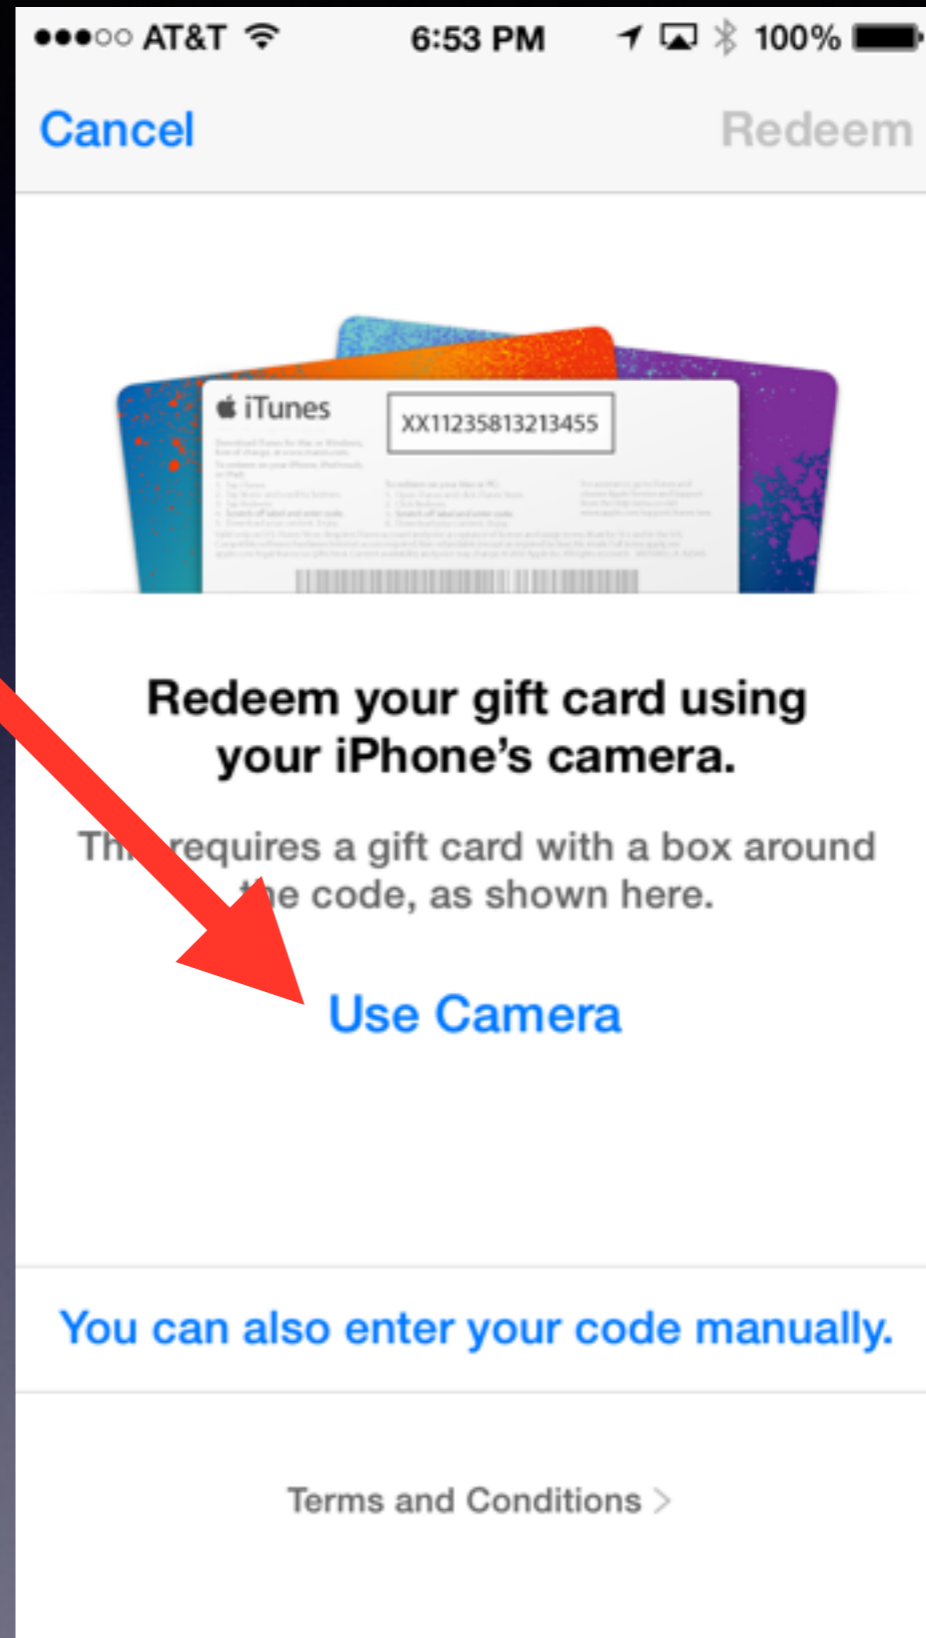

DEAR ABBY: I am a server in an upscale restaurant. Part of my job is refilling water goblets, which shouldn't be stressful except that almost all of our customers place their smartphones right next to their glasses. If I should make a slight mistake and accidentally drip water on these expensive devices, you know what would happen next. Please ask your readers to keep their smartphones off the table! -- CAREFUL SERVER IN BETHLEHEM, PA.

DEAR CAREFUL SERVER: I'm glad to ask, but many readers regard their smartphones as extensions of themselves. Convincing them to cooperate would be like selling them on amputating a finger. Of course, the lesson would be learned if the diner accidentally tipped over a water or wine glass because there would be no one else to blame. But in the meantime, it's important that when you pour, you do it VERY CAREFULLY.

Some water soaked cell phones may be recovered by

1. Don't turn them on..
2. Submerge in rice..
3. Air from Refrig....
