Jennifer Blanzky, 53, returned home from exercising one Saturday morning in September only to find out that someone was threatening to put her in jail because she wasn't responding to letters from the IRS.

The message left on the answering machine at her Grosse Pointe Park home said: "Do not ignore this phone call."

"So I called right away," Blanzky said.

After all, Blanzky's husband was wondering what was going on; her young daughter was frightened that something bad was going to happen to her mother. But quickly calling the number only stirred up frustration and out-right bullying from someone claiming to be from the Internal Revenue Service.

By now, one would think that most people have heard the warnings about the scam artists who are claiming to be from the IRS. The con artists yell and shout and threaten that people will go to jail or lose their drivers' licenses if they don't hand over money quickly.

But Blanzky never heard those warnings — otherwise she wouldn't have called her mother and asked for help finding an attorney quickly.

The threats of jail can be so intimidating that others targeted by the same scam rush to drugstores or supermarkets to load up thousands of dollars on prepaid GreenDot cards or other prepaid cards.

Think twice before updating your rusty old iPhone 4s to the just-released iOS 8 because Apple's feature-packed upgrade makes its handset run most tasks about two times (or more) slower.

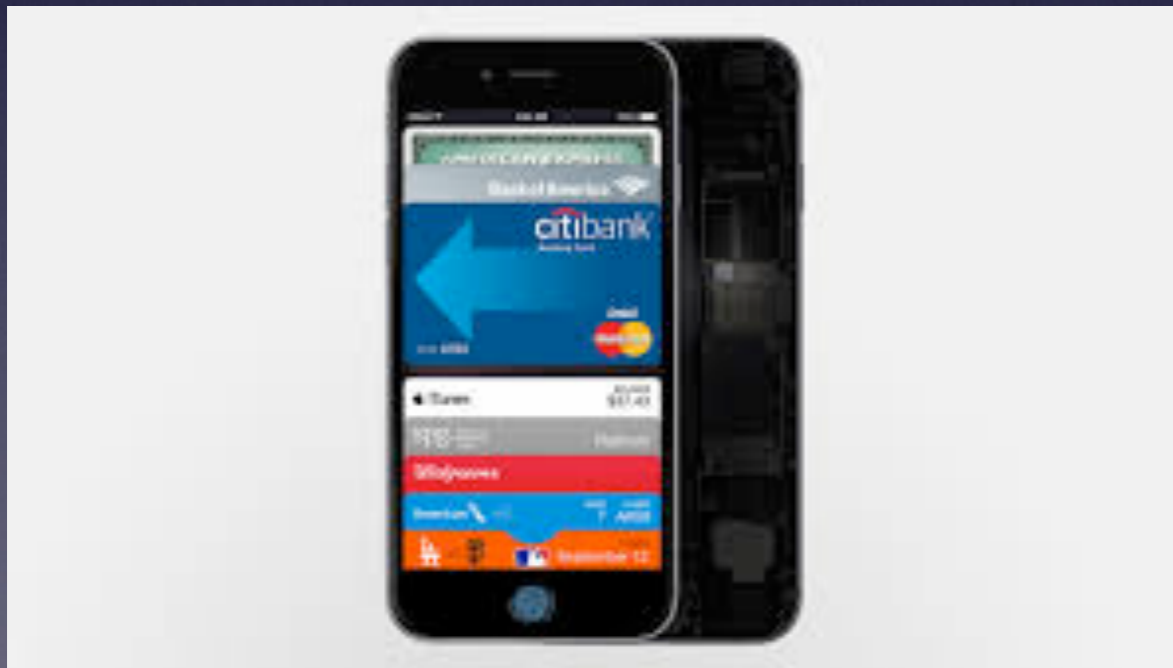

iOS 8 will slow down common tasks on the handset, including approximately two times slower launching of stock apps, almost three seconds longer booting and more, ArsTechnica reported Wednesday.

In addition to the performance hit, the three-year-old handset is incompatible with certain hardware-dependent iOS 8 features such as Handoff, AirDrop, the OpenGL ES 3.0 and Metal graphics run-time and more.

As you can see for yourself in the speed comparison table below, opening stock apps on the handset is about two times slower in iOS 8 compared to the latest iOS 7.1.2 software.

iPhone / iPad Secrets App

Apple Gives You An App!

IOS 8 Find My iPhone

Send last location to Apple before your battery dies - If you've ever lost your iPhone, this new feature allows your iPhone (or iPad) to send its last known location to Apple when the battery drains to a critical level. iCloud presently holds this information for 24 hours, but this new setting will allow Apple to access location information for a lost device for a longer period of time.

IOS 8 Music Shazam

Identify songs - Siri now includes Shazam integration. If you ask Siri, "What song is playing?", it will allow you to listen to the ambient sound, using Shazam to identify music. Shazam integration in Siri was included in the iOS 8 golden master, but it will be returned for the public release according to the GM notes.

Scan / Save Your Credit Card

Which Apps Use The Most Battery?

Find which app is using the most battery life - iOS 8 includes a new Settings option that allows you to view battery usage by app, monitoring the battery drain of specific apps so those that draw a lot of power can be shut down. As of beta 2, it also displays how much battery is drained when there's no cellular coverage.
