SEATTLE — A growing "Can you hear me?" phone scam can make you a victim if you utter just one word: "Yes."

This is how it works, according to the Better Business Bureau:

An automated call provides an introduction and identifies a business or agency. After the intro, the recording will ask if you can hear clearly.

If you answer yes, the scammer behind the call may have recorded you, could plan to use your affirmation to sign you up for a product or service you never knew about and then will demand payment. If you refuse, the scammer may produce your recorded "yes" response to confirm your purchase agreement.

How to prevent phishing scams

The best advice from the BBB:

- Hang up on any unsolicited robo-call. If you are on the federal Do Not Call List and a company calls out of the blue to ask questions, it's likely a scam.
- Avoid responding with "yes," "sure" or "OK."
- Hang up if you're asked to press a button to be placed on the Do Not Call registry. Doing anything else could help scammers identify an active phone number. No
